HALLOWEEN Approaches

Last month saw the end of the Olympics in Paris. What a few weeks of excellent sport unfolded. The highlight of the games was definitely the Paralympics where elite sports men and women fought for every medal. And, the highlight of the last few days of the games has to be the wheelchair basketball game where the GB team came so close to lifting the gold medal.

Now we are in October it is the month of Breast Cancer Awareness. With more than 360,000 people due to be diagnosed with breast cancer this year, it is more important than ever that early detection is achieved. If you need advice or help with breast cancer visit www.nationalbreastcancer.org.

Your October edition of The Journal contains all the usual features plus a great review of walking the Camino de Santiago as well as an insight to what is involved in putting together a very special charity calendar. The end of the month sees Halloween upon us and we have some useful tips on preparing for this evening.

If you have a story to share please do get in touch we would love to hear it.

Trick or Treat?

From all at The Journal we hope you enjoy this edition

Hilton ladies bare all!

Bridget Havard is one of the group behind the Hilton Calendar girls project that launches in November. Bridget explains who is involved, "There are seventeen women involved ranging in age from 20s to 80s, plus three very cute dogs. The women include the local publican's mum, some members of the local Women's Institute, and a young mum of a two-year-old! Some of us knew each other from putting on the local pantomime and some from being frequenters of the local village pub quiz on a Tuesday evening."

The photographs were taken over two photoshoots and all the backdrops are local to Hilton. So some photos were taken in the beautiful back gardens, another at the ancient Hilton maze, others in the pub and one image was even captured in a pottery shed! They even put up and decorated the Christmas tree for December! Kat Hutchinson (the daughter-in-law of one of our models and a professional photographer) worked hard to put the ladies at ease and to make the most of their assets without any loss of dignity.

Each of the women involved chose a theme that was personal to them. For example, November was chosen by Margaret who spearheads The Poppy Appeal for the Royal British Legion in Hilton, and January was assigned to our fantastic Warm Hub volunteers.

It is not just the case of stripping off

Bridget continues, "On one cold winter's evening, after a glass of wine or two in the pub, a few of us thought it would be a grand idea to do a cheeky calendar to support a local cause. Little did we know the amount of work it would take! We were unsure if we could recruit enough women willing to reveal (almost) all, but the word spread quickly, and before we knew it, we were a team of seventeen ready to do what it takes for the sake of a really good cause. It has involved many meetings, discussions, and accessing of appropriate accessories but we discovered that we came with many skills from IT to marketing and having a creative touch when needed. One of our sons even built our webpage for us! But most of all we have built a great camaraderie between us and have experienced so much joy and laughter."

They have managed to raise sufficient money to cover all our production costs through the generous sponsorship of local businesses. This means that all the money raised from sales of the calendar will go directly to the Community Hub to support the important work it provides within the village.

Where you can get your copy

The calendar is available pre-launch to purchase online via our website www.hiltonbarebeauty.co.uk, and also at the Prince of Wales pub, and from stands at various events from October onwards. There is an open invitation to join the launch party at the pub at 8pm on Saturday 16 November where the models will be present (dressed on this occasion) signing copies of the calendar.

Glebe Allotment Association Autumn Newsletter

Despite the variable weather conditions, mass invasions of weeds, sweetcorn-gobbling squirrels and slugs and snails, it has been a very productive year for all of us at the allotments.

Tomatoes, squash, courgettes, all kinds of fruit, potatoes, onions, garlic, cabbages, to name but a few, have flourished. Many of us also grow cut flowers and it has been a great year for cosmos and dahlias.

We have recently welcomed several new ploholders, as long-standing members of our group have given up part of their plots. The new members will benefit not only from well prepared ground but also the wisdom and knowledge of allotmenters who have worked their plots for many years.

This allotment year has also been marked by two very successful community gatherings: a Christmas mulled wine and cake get together and a very successful barbecue, all master minded by our newly appointed social secretary, Helen.

We are all very grateful to Fenstanton Parish Council for their support and look forward to the new allotment year which starts on 1 October, with hope as we peruse the very tempting array of glossy seed catalogues whose tomatoes never seem to get blight, whose cabbages never show any signs of slug damage and whose sweetcorn does not attract squirrels!

If you think you may be interested in having an allotment plot, please contact me using the address below.

Fenstanton Heritage Trail Opening Day

Fenstanton is fortunate to have a rich history, including the internationally important archaeological find of a crucifixion. Fenstanton Parish Council has supported the development of a heritage trail around the village to help celebrate and raise awareness of this fantastic history. With the help of parishioners Jean Ding and John Deeks, Councillor Matt Tandy has led the creation of the trail which has seen information boards installed at key locations through the village. On 10 August the village trail was officially opened with approximately 70 people in attendance. One visitor explained "I've been looking forward to this event for weeks, it's brilliant what you have done for the village".

County Council's Archaeology team, alongside Jean's excellent exhibition of village photographs. On opening the trail, Councillor Tandy thanked parishioners and fellow councillors for their support in creating the heritage trail content, leaflet and Opening Day. It is hoped the trail will be enjoyed by all ages and encourage parishioners and visitors to explore our wonderful village and its fascinating history.

The Heritage Trail has been reviewed highly, with one user saying

"it is one of the best additions to the village, well done!"

The Opening Day included an exhibition of Fenstanton artefacts by Cambridgeshire

A Heritage Trail leaflet and map is available in the Parish Council Hub, Ash's Shop and the United Reformed Church. Walking instructions and further history to learn on the trail is available by scanning the QR code on the information boards and online at: <https://fenstantonparishcouncil.gov.uk/trail>

Step into the Past

Memories of Fen Drayton school in the 1930s

By Richard Treeby

Extracts from an article by Margaret Hinton published in the Cambridge Evening News in 1988

When I was 23 years old, I became headmistress of a village in the Fens, 10 miles from Cambridge. There were 11 children and me.

I was very happy there for three years; the children were between four and a half and 11, and it was certainly family grouping and mixed ability teaching. I was gloriously independent and able to try out all my theories, a luxury young teachers are seldom allowed. We worked hard and went out a good deal, exploring the neighbourhood and looking at plants and animals. On foot, of course, as no transport would have been available.

I remember visits to the river, a mile away from the village, flowing high banked above the land, and the children's delight at my surprise as a West Country woman, where rivers behave in a very different way.

A schoolmistress's life was very different then, in a rural area, from that of today. There were no school meals, and at 12 o'clock I locked the schoolroom door with an enormous key. The children went home to dinner or if they lived further away took their sandwiches to a friend's house. I would go home to my cottage, do my housework, light my fire in winter, and then cook and eat a meal, everyone ate their main meal at mid-day, if they could.

I paid five shillings (25p) a week for my cottage in the village, it had a living room, a small kitchen and two bedrooms. There was a pump outside the back door and a earth closet at the end of the garden. There was no electricity in the village, I had an oil lamp and candles. Bath night was a basin of warm water in front of the coal fire.

The agricultural wage was 30 shillings (£1.50) a week, and families were poor and life hard in a way unknown in this country now. I was paid £150 a year, so I was well off by village standards.

Then came a complete change. Our village was chosen for one of the Land Settlement schemes, intended to give help to the unemployed miners, who were on the conscience of the nation. The soil was suitable for market gardening, and a number of pleasant brick houses were built with great speed, each with its own smallholding.

The men, who came from the Durham coalfields, were given a short residential training course, and then the families came. That of course, was where the school and I came in. The children were used to a very different set-up, and thought us proper softies. Fortunately, they did not all come at once, and there was a chance to get one lot settled before more arrived.

One boy demanded to know where I kept the non-existent cane on his first morning with us, and told me that his master at the other school always kept his cane in a jar of brine on his desk, the salt water made it sting more. Numbers rose to 60 and another young teacher was sent to help me.

The locals, not surprisingly, regarded the whole scheme with deep suspicion, and wanted to know why their village had been picked on and why they could not have the land and the nice new houses, when they knew so much more about cultivation than the newcomers.

One interesting development was that the people from the north were shocked by the almost complete lack of social life in the village. There was no village hall, but we were able to start a good many activities centered on the school.

So by degrees, the newcomers, young and old worked their way into the community. When it was time for me to move on, the two groups were coming together as a whole. Life must be very different there now.

News from Fenstanton and Hilton Primary and Preschool

We were so pleased to welcome the children back to school at the start of the new academic year in September. Coming back together as a community after a long break was a really special time and we enjoyed hearing about what our children and families had been doing over the summer break. We were also very pleased to have been able to keep a consistent and fantastic team of staff!

We have welcomed a fabulous new group of Reception Class children and we are excited to support their progress over the next seven years! In Year 6, our oldest children have made a positive start to their final year of primary school. Many of these children will have become school prefects by the time you read this, and they all have an important part to play as role models in our school.

In October we are looking forward to welcoming a champion scooter to school for two days of stunt scooter workshops. This promises to be really exciting for all of our children. Staying on two wheels, we will also host our colleagues from Bikeability. The team will work with our Year 5 and 6 children on their road safety.

Before that, on Monday 14 October, we will host our Open Evening for September 2025 school starters. We will welcome families at 3.30pm and 5.30pm. Please do share details of these short events with those families with children due to start school next year.

We are pleased to have been invited to the parish church by Reverend Rosie and Reverend Claire for a harvest service in the middle of October. Our children always enjoy these services.

With best wishes, from all of us at Fenstanton and Hilton Primary School and Preschool.

The Camino de Santiago

by Rev. Sue Baker-Maher

The Camino de Santiago, in English - the Way of St James, is an ancient pilgrim path, or rather series of paths fanning out across Europe dating back to the 9th century; all leading its travellers to the great Cathedral at Santiago de Compostela in Spain. Many first hear of 'the Camino' through the film 'The Way' starring Martin Sheen and James Nesbitt. More recently, the Camino has been the topic of a TV programme following a small group of celebs, traversing the most well-known route 'the Francis' - 500 odd miles starting at St Pied de Port in the southwest corner of France, crossing the Pyrenees and traversing the top of Spain towards the west coast. It's a journey of four to five weeks, but those of us unable to have five weeks away, do it in stages. If you have ten to twelve weeks to spare, Le Puy starting further up but still Southern France leads into the Francis but there are a host of other shorter routes starting at various points across Europe. Last year I completed the Portuguese, picking up the trail in Porto, arriving in Santiago 11 days later.

When I returned, first to London, a friend asked when I was going back to Cambridgeshire. I wasn't sure - later that day, perhaps that night or even first thing the next day. "After all, it's not far", I said. Just up the road. Then it struck me - on Camino that's a three day walk at least!

So why walk it? What's wrong with the bus or train? And why a pilgrimage? Why are people increasingly doing this and what's so different about it - why is it more than going on a hike or walking holiday?

Well, if I had to pick one thing, it seemed to be about intentionality. Going with intention, even if you are not quite sure or clear about what exactly that intention is.

You find yourself walking in all sorts of conditions - it was blistering hot on some days - so getting out at 5am was the best way of dealing with it despite the dark. On other days it bucketed down and I thought I was back in the UK. Uphill and down dale, sometimes on paths, sometimes such tracks, following the coastline at points, going through Eucalyptus forests at others. Sleeping mostly in hostels along the way - and comparing blister stories at the end of each day with all sorts of people; the youngest I met was 14, the oldest well into their 80s. All nationalities. We met people from Italy, Germany and France; there were Portuguese, Irish, Spanish, Czech, Polish, Taiwanese, Korean, Canadians, one or two American. Notably, on my Porto route, I was the only English person. There were as many travelling alone as those travelling together with a partner or friend. And a surprising number of women taking a solo journey. Job and backgrounds seem irrelevant. All heading for the famous cathedral which is home to the body of St James - or so the tradition goes.

Trains, Boats and Planes

Let me tell you ...seeing the towers of the Cathedral at Santiago appear as you walked over the last hill is quite an experience. Joining hundreds of others arriving from all directions e.g. Geneva, France, Portugal and Germany, streaming into the Cathedral Square brings much joy and celebration, as well as tears of sheer relief. I was very proud to receive my certificate, awarded to those with a valid credential – a document given at the start which you have stamped in all the places passed on the way.

Most of those arriving at the Cathedral attend the Pilgrim Mass. It happens twice a day. About 600-700 people each time – all faiths and none, listening in attentively whether the language is understood or not. But for some reason being there after such a journey feels important. We were reminded of transformation through walking, walking with others, people of different cultures and traditions, all dealing with whatever the journey threw up. All sharing the same journey, despite a host of different motivations for starting out, different reasons for doing the Camino.

We walked a while with a group of Italians carrying a tee shirt which they had stamped at each stage – symbolically carrying their lost friend with them. I met others speaking of needing to make key decisions or needing space to think – or just space to be. Some were trying to come to terms with big life changes. One person purported to have no reason in particular for walking but found himself relaying the story of the death of his young child many many years previously. Some wanted silence and solitude, needing to test themselves by travelling alone; others wanted to see how they got on being with strangers – people they didn't know. Many just walking to see what happened.

But all drawn to do the ancient tradition of pilgrimage and to the Camino de Santiago in particular – this way has been walked for over 1000 years. A tradition that in modern times seems quite bonkers. After all, did they really care about the apparent bones of St James said to rest in the cathedral? Did they really appreciate who James was, what motivated him to travel to the north of Spain? Did they really think much about Christ – James' motivation - to spread the Gospel? Not at all.

But these kinds of pilgrimages are on the increase although there's a long way to go before the numbers match those travelling these routes in medieval times. Whilst journeying in this way seeks to bring a change of some sort, for some a resolution or healing of some kind, it was clear to me that most valued something they couldn't quite put their finger on or articulate clearly. Yes, the challenge, the toughing it out, the camaraderie. All that.

But there was definitely something else that made this journey and this experience poignant in a way difficult to articulate and explain. It just is. The Camino is said to do what is ever is needed. And in some way or other putting yourself intentionally into a place of encounter brings about just that. Encounter. And it's interesting to reflect on how the seeking of encounter by so many over hundreds of years has shaped the landscape along the route itself – towns and cities have sprung up, communities formed, and lives lived out in places that are only there because people travelled and paused along the way. Journeys shape more than the people on them.

I wonder when you have felt a tug of your heart towards something important to you? Something that may involve stepping out of the normal routine of everyday life, doing things differently, living in a different way, going with less, taking a risk by doing something that doesn't make sense to our normal worldly values. Perhaps the voice of caution drowns out our hearts, naming risks, knocking edges off yearnings and dreams, things that we feel drawn to, or even called to. I wonder what stumbling blocks the world, our modern-day way of life, the expectations and pressures hold over you? What holds you back, and cause you to perhaps not go there.....

We are not all called to pilgrimage in this way. Denying oneself is a lot harder than wandering off with just two tee shirts in your rucksack and a camino shell round your neck. Denying 'self' and living simply is often hardest in the context of everyday life. At the Mass in the cathedral at Santiago de Compostela, we were reminded of the pilgrim way of tolerating others, accepting people for who they are, finding Grace in them and in the journey. I have to say this only served to remind me of wanting to murder the person who kept me awake by repacking their rucksack at 11pm at night, and the time when I was seriously less than happy with the exuberance of one or two fellow travellers who seemed to think Camino was the latest version of an 18-30 holiday. At those points tolerating others was very far from my mind!

And the Mass brought to my mind how hard it is to obtain and hold on to a real pilgrim heart. It was some comfort to hear that in many ways the journey only really begins at the end. The pilgrim beatitudes offer much to contemplate.

The Camino is about intentionally putting yourself out of your comfort zone, trying to live with it and learning about yourself on the way. Being willing to let things go - being prepared to carry less, needing less because we learn to trust that we can travel more lightly, that we can go forward without all our baggage, even when we are less than sure exactly where we are heading. The point is being willing to move towards where we are drawn - even when it feels less than comfortable.

Whether you are able to go walk the Camino or not the point is finding ways of putting yourself in the place where something might happen; a space where you might meet with God however you understand her or him to be, simply by taking time out of the normal day to day, a time to recognise and savour being on the journey because it's how we journey that really counts.

In the Autumn Sue and Danny will be holding a session to share some of the more practical aspects of walking the Camino, getting to the starting points, when to go, what to take, where to stay and how to prepare. If you would like to know when this meeting will take place contact Sue on sue.bakermaher@methodist.org.uk

The Pilgrim Beatitudes

- ◆ Blessed are you pilgrim, if you discover that the “camino” opens your eyes to what is not seen.
- ◆ Blessed are you pilgrim, if what concerns you most is not to arrive, as to arrive with others.
- ◆ Blessed are you pilgrim, when you contemplate the “camino” and you discover it is full of names and dawns.
- ◆ Blessed are you pilgrim, because you have discovered that the authentic “camino” begins when it is completed.
- ◆ Blessed are you pilgrim, if your knapsack is emptying of things and your heart does not know where to hang up so many feelings and emotions.
- ◆ Blessed are you pilgrim, if you discover that one step back to help another is more valuable than a hundred forward without seeing what is at your side.
- ◆ Blessed are you pilgrim, when you don't have words to give thanks for everything that surprises you at every twist and turn of the way.
- ◆ Blessed are you pilgrim, if you search for the truth and make of the “camino” a life, and of your life a “way”, in search of the one who is the Way, the Truth, and the Life.
- ◆ Blessed are you pilgrim, if on the way you meet yourself and gift yourself with time, without rushing, so as not to disregard the image in your heart.
- ◆ Blessed are you pilgrim, if you discover that the “camino” holds a lot of silence; and the silence of prayer; and the prayer of meeting with God who is waiting for you.

For your information: please note that the Parish Church, Fenstanton has a ramp for disabled access which can be deployed upon request. There is also a toilet, with disabled access, in the church.

St Mary's has a small threshold that may be possible to navigate with a wheelchair. There are no toilet facilities, yet (on our list of things to do).

Although we have fixed pews in both churches there are plenty of spaces available for wheelchairs, prams and buggies. We will be happy to help you find a space if that helps you to feel welcome among us as we worship.

News...and in the twinkling of an eye, summer was gone. So do your clocks change automatically? Will you be like me, trying to work out what the real time is, I mean really, really is...will I be late or early? My cat will want feeding, no matter what time the clock says. Her tea-time gets earlier and earlier the older she gets. How are you as the seasons change? What do you notice?

This month we have our annual Harvest Festivals on 13 October, do see the posters for more details and a list of most urgent items needed at St Ives Foodbank. Thank you for any support you may be able to give. I know that rumour is an interesting thing in village life, but it would really help us if you could spread the word that there are harvest services in BOTH churches, St Mary's and St Peter & St Paul's. Thank you very much.

For those who need to note things on calendars then this is the last month for Evensong at 6pm, and it will be a Choral Evensong on 20 October. From November the service time reverts to 5pm for the winter months. Do join us at the parish church for this very traditional service.

And advance notice of our "Time To Remember" Service on Saturday 2 November at 11am, in the parish church, Fenstanton. This is a time when we can remember our loved ones who have died, whether recently or a time ago. For some people remembering anniversaries or significant events is an important thing to do. Please do come along, bring some flowers if you would like, to leave in church. Come and light a candle in memory. Place a prayer on our memory tree (cards provided). Or just sit and take time to reflect during the service. Please stay for refreshments afterwards, if you can, and say hello. If you would like the name(s) of your loved one(s) read out during the service, then please do let us know:

Rev Rosie – email vicar@fenchurches.org.uk or leave a message on 01480 467393 or post a note through The Vicarage letterbox, 16 Church Street, Fenstanton.

Rev Claire – email curate@fenchurches.org.uk

There will also be a list at the back of the parish church during October, to add names.

Autumn is the season of harvest, of gathering in; storing up for harder times and although today we don't need to store up food, I wonder if you are like me, storing up lots of different items for a rainy day; not wanting to waste resources by constantly throwing away, not wanting to get rid of things that remind me of lost family and friends, but hating the cleaning and tidying that comes with clutter, and the time, effort and attention it steals from really being with those I care about, doing things I really value.

I am reminded of the old Russian tale of Babushka who missed seeing baby Jesus by being overly concerned about keeping her house and belongings organised, clean and neat.

In the Bible the parable of the wealthy farmer warns against storing up. He built ever bigger barns to retain his crops but then died before he could benefit. For me it is trips to Ikea to find ever more clever ways of increasing storage to retain access to the kitchen sink.

Today both storing up and getting rid is equally problematic. Making provision for our children and older folk is increasingly difficult but in the meantime we clutter up our lives and our world with small imperishable bits and pieces which are increasingly hard to recycle.

I found the ever-proliferating charity shops full to overflowing, using the dump required booking ahead and if Facebook is anything to go by, even giving things away can be difficult.

Surely the message for us today is that our lives and our planet need us to consume less and make do more. This requires shifting attitudes about efficiency, effectiveness and what counts as achievement and success.

As we approach this Harvest, a time of thanksgiving for all we have, might we consider how we can consume less and what attitudes and practices we might have to change in order to do so? The 'C' season will swiftly follow. I for one will be thinking differently about what presents to buy this year and whether real presence might be a better option all round.

Hilton Parish Church

Dear Friends,

How easy do you find it to pray? If you are anything like me, the answer would be: 'not very.' If we are Christians, we all know we should pray, and many other people often think of it, but there can be all sorts of things that prevent us.

It could be that we think that joining in with public worship in church on Sundays is enough. It could be that we feel we are too busy. Or it may just be that we don't really know how to go about it. Do I have to be in a special place to pray? A special position? What should I pray about? What words should I use? Should I have any particular feelings when I pray?

The answers to those five questions are: no; no; anything; any; no. Prayer is really God showing us what is in His heart, and our learning to express what is in ours. I believe that people do in fact pray all the time, since God never ceases to stir in us. The problem is that so many of us are not aware of this process going on. We think of prayer as a difficult and unappealing activity, something we have to force ourselves to do like dieting or exercise, rather than the spiritual equivalent of breathing.

In fact, breathing has a real connection to prayer. We breathe all the time without thinking about it, but when we are still enough, even for a moment, to become conscious of our breathing, to slow it down and make it deeper, it becomes much easier to offer a prayer, even if it is simply 'Thank you, Lord,' or 'God, help me.'

Or perhaps the knowledge that someone else needs our prayers might get us going. 'Dear God, please help X Amen.' Anyone can say that in their own heart several times a day, and that is enough. And with God, small things grow great.

With love,

David

Mama Jo's Mischief

Welcome to Mama Jo's Mischief. Here, you will find an array of new craft activity ideas every month for children of all ages, as well as occasional places of interest and recommended local events. Happy mischief making!

Halloween Mummies

Halloween is one of our favourite times of the year. We love decorating the house and doing lots of spooky arts & crafts.

My daughter has started to take an interest in dressing up this year, so we took a trip to Poundland and bought a small pack of toilet paper and had lots of fun one afternoon wrapping each other up as mummies. This doubled as a sensory experience and I took the opportunity to teach Sky a little bit about Ancient Egypt; I even showed her the Pyramids of Giza.

It's silly memories like this that I will remember and cherish forever. I will never tire of hearing my daughter laugh and seeing her smile. It brings me so much joy to know she is happy.

A little bit of mischief goes a long way.

We have lots of FREE printable Halloween colouring pages available, please contact us if you would like any. In addition, they will be available to take away at our craft session held at the Fenstanton Baby & Toddler Group on Tuesday 29th October.

An exciting announcement is coming soon! Be sure to follow us on social media so you don't miss it.

Clover in Lawns

Authors and drunks (we pray) turn over new leaves, while gardeners rake up old ones. Autumn leaves are a treasure and make the best compost. They also clog gutters, drains, turn paving into a slip hazard and smother grass. Tough, thicker leaves from likes of evergreens, oak and beech take a long time to break down while some leaves disintegrate within days of landing. Elms trees have rough and hairy leaves which if damp rot away in days. I remember when taking head gardeners from the Royal Parks around a tree nursery in Suffolk they bemoaned the loss of the elms because their leaves didn't require raking up. I also remember I had dined and wineed them the night before and with my bushy beard they thought 'rough and hairy' a good description of me!

Clover lawns are now becoming fashionable, especially in the USA. Taller varieties look good but are useless as usable spaces and look a mess after mowing. Creeping clovers have always occurred naturally in untreated grass and they can be sown into established lawns. Regular, annual scarifying will help to keep the clovers from smothering the grass. But my big question is how do you control other weeds without killing the clover especially when the germinate in bare patches after a drought? While bees love clover they don't appreciate being trodden on.

October Top Tips

- Clean patios and paths
- Mulch borders

A Civility & Respect

Report from the Meeting of the Council dated Monday 02 September

Dumping on the Wilderness

Reports have been received of a silver van accessing the wilderness and depositing green waste on the bonfire site. There was also an unauthorised burning of the bonfire. The Clerk has changed the code on the padlock. Please let the Clerk know if you notice anything suspicious.

Trees

The Open Spaces Officer has started the annual tree survey with the tree surgeons and will present his tree report in due course. The large oak outside Monach Farm remains fenced off for safety reasons and we would ask that the fence is not moved. The Open Spaces Officer is liaising with the Tree Officer at Huntingdonshire District Council regarding this tree. The volunteer group will be working on the horse chestnut in Mill Hill and the small trees outside Oak Tree Farm once the leaves have fallen.

Maintenance Materials

The Council authorised the purchases of additional sander batteries and furniture oil at a cost of £118.

Biodiversity

The Council considered its duty under biodiversity and asked the Green Open Spaces working group to present a recommendation at a future meeting.

Feast Week

The Council approved the request from Hilton Feast Week CIC to hold Feast Week on the Green from Sunday 27th July to Saturday 2nd August 2025 with the marquee erected from Monday 21st July to Monday 4th August inclusive.

Bonfire Night

The annual Bonfire Night and Fireworks will be held on Saturday 9th November and the Council has authorised expenditure of up to £1920 for the fireworks. Please see separate poster for details.

External Audit

The external audit report has been received from PKF Littlejohn which shows that there are no matters of concern. The notice of conclusion of audit will be published on the website and noticeboards.

Consultations

The Council has resolved to respond to the consultation regarding Bus Franchising from the Cambridgeshire and Peterborough Combined Authority and the consultation regarding the changes to the National Planning Policy Framework.

New Councillor

Christopher Wood has been co-opted as a Councillor. Christopher is a chartered quantity surveyor and moved to Hilton with his family in 2023. When asked why he wanted to become a parish councillor he said "I am keen to do something to support the local community using the skills, qualifications and attributes I have. I want to help preserve and protect the village and its heritage and help others where I can."

The next Parish Council meeting will be held on Monday 7th October 2024 in Hilton Village Hall. Agendas will be issued in advance on the village notice boards and the Council's website www.hiltonparishcouncil.com. Parishioners are welcome to speak at council meetings on agenda items.

Thinking of divorce but worrying about how to survive financially?

Divorce is a big decision. Ending a relationship can have huge emotional repercussions, but when you are married, whether for a relatively short time or decades, the emotional fallout can be painful.

There are lots of considerations, such as how to tell your spouse you want a divorce, what you will do about the living arrangements for the children and, for a lot of people, what does the future look like financially?

Will it be easier if I stay in my unhappy marriage?

Money can be the reason people break up, but for many it can also be the reason for staying together. You might be weighing up your options and whether you would just be better off staying in an unhappy marriage to remain economically secure.

The saying “money doesn’t buy happiness” is often overused, but it can be true. If you know that your marriage is at an end, and staying will negatively impact upon your emotional wellbeing, then no amount of money is going to help save your relationship. However, it is very natural to be anxious about your life after divorce. You might be worried about how you will afford things like a home, childcare, food, bills and how to keep your standard of living the same.

Short-term money worries

You might not be the “breadwinner” in your relationship. Perhaps you work part-time or taken time out of work to look after the children or because as a couple you are comfortable enough financially for one party not to work. Whatever the reason, if you are the financially weaker party, you might have lots of concerns about affording things during and after your divorce. You may worry that you cannot afford to divorce.

Sadly, money is an unavoidable topic in divorce. Short-term costs like Court fees and legal fees can be stressful but there are ways of mitigating the impact. By engaging in a non-adversarial process, you can limit legal fees as well as additional emotional stress of Court proceedings.

Some couples choose to manage most of the divorce themselves. However, there are several risks involved with doing a DIY divorce, so it is best to seek legal advice where possible, particularly when it comes to finances.

The law in this country means that financial settlements begin from a starting point of an equal division of any assets from a marriage. However, a Court will look at all the factors including housing, children, pensions (something that is often overlooked by separating couples) future income potential and a host of other things when deciding what financial provision to make.

If you are financially weaker than your spouse, it may be that you are entitled to spousal maintenance or a lump sum payment as part of a clean break. Remember to seek legal advice as to what you will likely be entitled to, this could help put your mind at ease.

If you are going through or contemplating separation and would like some legal advice on where you stand and what options are available to you, the family team at Leeds Day LLP can help. The team consists of experienced family law solicitors, all of whom are members of Resolution (www.resolution.org.uk) and include Resolution accredited specialists in divorce, finances and children.

Your Parish Council is happy to announce that, in collaboration with the Cambridgeshire County Council Local Highways officer, an agreement has been reached with the Carriageways Team to refresh all the road markings at the Honey Hill/Church Lane/Chequer Street junction.

This is expected to improve safety for drivers navigating the junction. The works were ordered on 30 July, and they are expected to be completed within 13 weeks from that date.

Councillor Surgeries

Councillor surgeries are now held once a month on a Saturday morning between 10am – 12pm at The Hub, 6 High Street, Fenstanton.

Grass Cutting – Responsibilities

The Parish Council has recently taken over the responsibility for grass-cutting areas that were previously maintained by Huntingdonshire District Council. This change will be on a trial basis for one year, starting from 1 June 2024, until 31 May 2025. After this period, the arrangement will be reassessed.

Think before you park

Your Parish Council has received reports of inconsiderate parking around the village. Please avoid parking:

- Too close to junctions
- On blind corners
- On verges
- On pathways

Inconsiderate parking can create dangerous situations for other drivers and make it difficult for pedestrians, including those using mobility scooters or pushing prams. Let's work together to keep our village safe and accessible for everyone.

Next Parish Council meetings

Your Parish Council meets next on Thursday 10 October and Thursday 14 November at 7pm in the Church Centre.

Bag it. Bin it. Don't step in it!

We kindly request that all dog owners in our community responsibly clean up after their pets. Dog waste can pose a health hazard and is unsightly. Please dispose of it in designated bins.

Let's work together to keep our neighbourhood clean and enjoyable for everyone. Thank you for your cooperation.

Please respect the village and the facilities provided.

We have seen a rise in graffiti incidents in our village, unfortunately not the work of Banksy! While these cases have been reported to the police, the removal process is time-consuming and costly. Ultimately, these expenses are passed on to all residents through our Parish Council taxes.

If you witness any anti-social behaviour, please report it to the police or your Parish Council. Your help in maintaining a safe and clean community is invaluable.

Reporting crimes

If you witness a crime or antisocial behaviour in Cambridgeshire, please report it directly to the police here: www.cambs.police.uk/report. The more reports submitted, the greater the chance something will be done.

Here are some additional resources:

Emergency Services (999): If a crime is in progress or someone is in immediate danger.

Non-Emergency Police Number (101): To report crimes or antisocial behaviour that is not an emergency. Crimestoppers (0800 555 111): To report crimes anonymously.

Remember, your safety is paramount. If you feel threatened or in danger, do not hesitate to call 999.

Parish Councillor Vacancies

Make a difference!

Are you interested in making a positive impact in your local community? If so, your Parish Council would like to hear from you. Currently, there are two vacancies for co-option, and the Parish Council would love to hear from you if you are interested in becoming a Parish Councillor.

Hilton WI Favourites

Date Cake - Sugar & Wheat free

Ingredients:

1 ½ cup packed chopped pitted dates

½ cup hot water

1 ½ cup packed ground almonds

½ teaspoon bicarbonate of soda

pinch of salt

3 eggs

2 tablespoons coconut oil

2 teaspoons vanilla extract

55g chopped walnuts or 1 small chopped eating apple/raspberries/coconut - whatever you fancy adding. Or add ½ cup of cocoa to the dry ingredients if you want a chocolate flavour.

Method:

Place dates and water in a bowl and leave for an hour or so until all the water has been absorbed then mash with a fork to blend to a paste. Or if time is short just place dates and warm water in a food processor and blend to form a smooth paste.

Preheat oven to 325° F /165° C.

Mix all dry ingredients (ground almonds, bicarbonate of soda and salt) in a bowl and set aside.

Mix the wet ingredients (eggs, coconut oil, vanilla extract) into the date paste and mix until smooth.

Add the wet to the dry and stir until smooth, then add walnuts or any other flavourings and mix in.

Grease or line an 8" round cake tin or 2lb loaf tin and pour in the batter.

Bake for 25-30 minutes, or until a skewer comes out clean. Loaf tin takes about 35+ minutes. Let it cool for at least 10 - 15 minutes before serving so it has time to set. Tastes even better if you make it the day before you want to eat it.

Store in the fridge as it has no sugar to preserve it and for the best flavour bring it out for 10 minutes or so beforehand and serve at room temperature.

Coleslaw

Ingredients:

Small white cabbage finely shredded (or thicker if wished)

Grated carrot/s

Dessert apples - chopped to your preferred size

I now usually put in grapes – halved or raisins or sultanas

Thick (Greek) yoghurt / mayonnaise.

Method:

I mix the two above together before adding the cabbage etc., then marinade, allowing a certain degree of softening over 1 - 2 days.

My mission

Sarah Airey is a woman on a mission. It's maybe not as impossible as travelling to the moon but almost as difficult to achieve. Sarah wants to improve the diets of people suffering with respiratory illnesses. Why? "Because we are what we eat and the correct diet can really improve the health of patients." Sarah explains.

Sarah is a qualified dietitian having studied for four years at Kings College, London. "I have always been interested in food and cooking so it seemed an obvious choice as a career." After qualifying in 2000 she joined the NHS and worked for over fourteen years at Papworth, both in the village and the new facility on the Cambridge Biomedical campus (next to Addenbrooke's Hospital). "Have you ever wondered what a dietitian's role is in intensive care? I am the one who decides what goes in the tube which feeds patients who cannot feed themselves. The right diet is critical to their speedy recovery. Patients often say I will be alright when I get home and start eating properly. What they don't realise is that if they don't eat properly in hospital they will not get better. It was my job to ensure they did."

The next stage

She left the NHS in 2023 to set up her own dietary practice with the view of helping people and in particular older people understand their diets at this important time of their lives. "I am not a fan of diets as such, because so often when you go on a diet to lose weight, all you do is think about your diet which just makes you feel more hungry. Low calorie products tend to be on protein and fat and we need both to maintain a balanced diet. Fad diets don't work long term and you simply put back on the weight in time thus yoyo-ing from one diet to the next. I want people to understand what they eat and why."

Away from work Sarah is kept busy with her three children and renovating their house in Hilton. If she does have any down time she enjoys wild swimming, which one of her older patients said, "Is this simply what we used to call swimming?" She enjoys the water and will often be seen paddle boarding on the waterways around the area. Sarah also enjoys singing and is an active member of the Rock Choir with her next performance scheduled as part of the Gardener's World event.

"For me my job is not just about the money but is helping to spread the word about proper diets. There is so much misinformation out there and too much focus on weight and BMI measurements. I have experienced first hand how the identification and treatment of poor nutrition does not always get the attention it deserves." Sarah concludes.

Sarah provides clinic consultations or home visits and specialises in assessing and treating older patients with or without chronic lung conditions. And, when she is not working locally she continues her mission by championing nutrition with doctors and other health professionals who treat patients with respiratory disease. To that end she has joined the British Thoracic Society to ensure nutrition is prioritised in treatment plans at the highest level.

If you need help with your diet or you are losing weight unintentionally you can contact Sarah via email at sarah@respiratorynutrition.co.uk for follow her on Instagram respiratorynutrition.

update

Message from the chair

New pavilion

As reported in the July issue, we were unsuccessful with our grant application to FCC for the new pavilion. We have now put an initial application in to Thalia, so are hoping that we will be invited to apply for phase two of the process – fingers firmly crossed!

Pump track

The 2019 village survey highlighted that while the village had amenities that were suitable for young children, there was a need for something for the older ones.

The parish council has been looking into this issue for some time now and I'm delighted to say it was successful in obtaining a grant from the Rural England Prosperity Fund, supported by SCDC and our district councillor, Sue Ellington. The grant, along with S106 monies from the affordable homes development off Cootes Lane (earmarked for facilities for young people in the village), means that we can now build the pump track on the village hall field. This type of track is suitable for mountain bikes, BMX bikes, skateboards, micro scooters and roller blades and has proved to be very popular and well used in other locations. We will keep you posted with more information in the coming month or two. You never know, the next Beth Shriever could come from Fen Drayton!

Village hall

Once building began on the affordable housing development in Cootes Lane, the parish council received £34,000 in S106 monies - £5,000 for village hall refurbishments and £29,000 for a BMX track. The village hall committee is replacing the curtains in the main hall and putting new flooring in the committee room.

Flooding

An information event, held by the Environment Agency in August, made it clear that there was no money available to repair the sluice gates in St Ives and Brownshill Stauch. The EA's modelling shows no additional flood risk if the sluices are not repaired.

The parishes attending the meeting were extremely dissatisfied with EA's responses. Subsequently, CCC has asked Cambridge MP and Defra minister, Daniel Zeichner, to meet to discuss the issues raised. There is now a move among all the interested parties to meet face-to-face to try to help the EA to secure government funding. We will keep you updated.

District Councillor Sue Ellington's report

South Cambs District Council has been working hard to find a way to make the community warden service sustainable. In March 2024 the service was under threat of closure due to lack of funding, but SCDC found money to cover costs until April 2025.

It also commissioned a research project to determine what all the different community warden services provide. The report identifies a wealth of tasks which wardens perform to support elderly people at home and prevent them being admitted to nursing home care. It estimates that for every £1 spent, wardens provide £3.50 worth of value. This is powerful evidence to present to Cambridgeshire County Council, which has a statutory responsibility for providing care. I hope that CCC will recognise the value of the warden services and find the necessary funds, as it is more cost effective for people to be at home, rather than in hospital or a nursing home.

Since the introduction of the four-day week and more home working, there is considerable spare office capacity in the SCDC headquarters on Cambourne Business Park. The council has taken the opportunity to create a new ground floor facility, called South Cambs Connect, which is now open for bookings.

South Cambs Connect is an affordable and modern workspace hub, designed to provide a creative and dedicated co-working environment for local entrepreneurs, start-up businesses, community interest companies, community groups and professional council partners.

South Cambs Connect workspaces will be free of charge until December 2024, in exchange for feedback to help SCDC refine and improve the service.

For help with any district council issues, email: cllr.ellington@scambs.gov.uk or call: 01954 202923 or 077741463.

Fen Drayton Community Cafe

The November cafe will host another Christmas Fair, with stalls from local craftspeople including ceramics, cards and other Christmas gifts.

December's cafe will kick off the Christmas period with another guest performance by the Swavesey Community Choir, treating us all to a variety of songs and music – so come along, join in and enjoy some festive spirit! The December cafe will also serve soups with bread or scones as well as homemade cakes and bakes and freshly brewed tea and coffee.

There will be another opportunity to apply for a Fen Drayton Community Charity grant of £200 next spring.

The next cafe is Saturday 12 October from 10.30 am to 12.30pm. The Gardening Club meets at 10.45 am.

Has your appetite started to decline or are you losing weight unintentionally?

Undernutrition (malnutrition) can seriously impact on health and quality of life as you get older but is sometimes overlooked

We have experienced dietitians who provide clinic consultations or home visits locally. We specialise in assessing and treating older adults, with and without chronic lung conditions.

Dietitians are regulated health professionals qualified to assess, diagnose and treat dietary and nutritional problems.

For more information on nutrition, malnutrition and how we can help please visit our website.

Hilton Community Hub

Well, we're back after the holidays!

It was just like the new term from schooldays, greeting one another with 'how are you?', 'had a good summer?', then attacking the fiendish quiz on Education - an easier one next time please Sue.

The new jigsaw came out and conversation began as it always does. Tea, coffee and chocolate biscuits disappeared rapidly and for lunch Jan's fantastic team treated us to home-made rolls, cheese, tomatoes, etc and cake of course!

Jan and her team have discussed an interesting programme of activities including creating items for our stall at the Parish Church Christmas Fayre on 30 November.

The hub is a wonderful way to pass a Wednesday morning making new friends and greeting 'old' ones so do come and be warmly welcomed throughout the coming winter.

Hilton Art Club

The August session was an interesting one. We were instructed to just use earth colours only in a subject of our choice.

This inspired people to paint mainly flora and fauna in a variety of media and subjects including a scene with elephants, stag, giraffe and lots of flowers and trees which made lovely pictures (see Kathy B's giraffe painting).

A lovely morning.

18 October 10.00am – 3.00pm Acrylic Workshop with Julia Rigby.

Booking essential.

Hilton Women's Institute

Summer is giving way to autumn but there is much to look forward to, not least with Mel now seeking speakers for 2026 and in October we learn about bee- keeping!

Recently a small group of members planned to take a river trip from St Ives including a stop at the Cock in Hemingford for tea but we're disappointed that it had to be deferred to a future date because the lock was broken.

In October three teams will be testing our knowledge at a Quiz night in Abbots Ripon run by Federation, we will be brilliant of course. Another group of ladies enjoyed a wonderful evening at Cineworld to see the filming of Andre Rieu's concert from Maastricht, we left behind the mundane things of life to hear music and songs from Mozart to the Beatles and to see members of his audience dancing in the aisles. Thank you, Doreen for organising us and the tickets.

Also, a HUGE thank you, particularly from the committee, to Doreen and Ruth for organising our Summer Buffet. What a treat it was to be waited on with the contributions of tasty food and oh, the desserts!

At our recent meeting Damien O'Dell told of his research into Ghosthunting, particularly in this area, there were some doubters of course but his many experiences did give genuine reasons to ponder. Locally there are reputed ghosts upstairs in the Golden Lion, many Americans in RAF Alconbury have seen apparitions but few British, Lucy Boston's house in Hemingford, Hinchbrook House and Buckden's George Hotel and Towers have 'visitors'.

Damien and fellow researchers spend many hours following such stories, particularly at Chicksands Park, which is believed to be the most haunted in the country with reports from a time when it was owned by monks and Damien has written a fascinating book on its history.

Our clubs and gatherings continue unabated, we are a group of fortunate ladies to have so much to offer us.

So - New members very welcome:-

Season begins for Fenstanton Football Club!

Saturday 7 September saw the start of our new football season, with a buzz of activity at the Club. Our new U7 and U8 teams saw their very first league games, with some great results for both teams. We are looking forward to some exciting football being played over the next nine months. Games are held at the Football Club on Hall Green Lane every Saturday and Sunday, all support from the community is welcome so please come down and watch. You can also follow the progression of the club on our new and improved website at www.fenstantonfc.co.uk

The Club are excited to announce the expansion of our teams with the addition of the newly formed U10 team, who have started training together with the hope of joining the league in the new year.

Under 8s first league game

We are still looking for a couple of additional players to complement the current set up and welcome interest from those in school year 5.

This is also the time for us to start developing our new U6 team for those currently in school year 1. We will require two adult volunteer coaches to join our fantastic club and support these young kids in accessing and enjoying football.

If you are a local business who would like to get involved with the Football Club, we are always looking for support with sponsorship. Please get in touch and we would be happy to discuss this further with you.

If you are interested in any of the opportunities to be involved with the Club, please contact us at fenstantonfootball@outlook.com

Under 7s first league game

Fenstanton Friendship Club

If you would like to meet new friends and socialise, please come along and help the club grow. Age is no barrier and we welcome everyone into our fold. It is always good to get new ideas and suggestions for meetings. We meet every other Wednesday at 2.00pm, in the building of the United Reformed Church in Chequer Street. Although we hold our meetings in the church building, we are not affiliated to the church. Our activities are varied and as well as the yearly trips out to lunch, cream teas, boat trips on The Ladybird, strawberry tea and Christmas celebration, we will have various speakers and entertainers.

Come along and check us out, you will find a friendly group and a warm welcome.

14 August We had a wonderful afternoon with Caroline Foster. Her voice is beautiful and everyone enjoyed all the songs from the shows.

28 August Twelve members had an afternoon at Burghley House. We used A&B taxis from St Ives, the vehicle was just right and the driver very helpful. He returned and picked us up at 4.30 pm. After walking around the beautiful gardens we had refreshments before our guided tour of the house. Our guide, Jeanie, was wonderful, very informative, helpful and friendly. In fact, all the staff could not have been more helpful. The weather was perfect and we had a great time.

Upcoming Meetings

9 October Lunch at the Marina

23 October A talk from Hannah Shepherd, our village community policing officer.

Fenstanton Bowls Club

Wow! What an end to a very successful season we have had! Our 1st Team in the Cambridge & District League Division Two were league winners and will be promoted to Division One next season. Many congratulations to them. They will now compete in the Champion of Champions competition in the next few weeks and we wish them every success.

Our Ladies' league were second in their division in a very close fight for the top slot and the Men's Team came third so just missed out on promotion, but we're sure they will be there next season!

Hetherton Trophy competitors Mike Driver and Linda Brodie

Our two Over 60's teams finished in the 2nd half of their respective leagues, but both teams had a great time playing on blissful Wednesday afternoons against very friendly teams from the local area.

On the last weekend of August we had our Finals Day with the Hetherton Trophy,

In the afternoon we had the Bertha Pitfield Trophy. A triples game where teams are drawn randomly. The two teams who made it through to Finals Day were Patrick Morris, Cliff Thornhill and Elaine Ward against Ray Worsley, Pat Porter and Mike Driver. Winners on the day were Patrick, Cliff and Elaine who will be presented with their trophy at the annual dinner in November.

and Patrick Morris*

Hopefully the weather will stay warm and dry during September so we can continue to play before we start the process of closing our club house down for the winter. Before we know it, April will come round and it will be the start of a new season. We will hold our Open Days again in May, so why not come down and find out more about us – you may find a new sport/hobby you can really enjoy!

Hilton Rainbows and Brownies

Hilton Brownies and Rainbows are enjoying a fun-filled term, which began with a visit to Hertfordshire zoo. They are also busy working for programme badges and have been selected to trial some brand new ones! At the end of term we hope to visit a local care home to give them the gifts we are making and sing carols. Some Brownies are on track to earn their Gold awards, the highest award they can achieve in Brownies.

We have spaces in our Rainbow unit at present so if anyone would like to put their daughter's name down, please get in contact or go on www.girlguiding.org.uk to register.

We are always looking for adult volunteers, especially for Rainbows, so if this is something you would be interested in we would be very pleased to hear from you.

An update from Fen Drayton Lakes

As we head into autumn, another breeding season on the reserve has come to an end. Like in previous years, this one has had mixed success with some species doing well and others sadly not doing so well.

A pair of Grey Heron successfully nested on site for the first time, fledging three chicks. As birds that usually nest communally, it is going to be interesting to see if they return next year and have other pairs join them.

A Hobby pair once again nested on site, fledging two chicks. Despite being aerial predators that spend a lot of time in the sky, they are amazingly unobtrusive when nesting and we weren't aware of them until quite late in the breeding season.

Our pre-dawn bittern surveys back in April quickly picked up two booming males: one each on Holywell and Elney Lakes. We were unable to conclusively confirm if either had attracted a female, but it is likely that at least one of them did as a Bittern was seen regularly flying in and out of Holywell throughout the summer – behaviour typically associated with a female feeding young.

A Nightingale was present and singing beautifully for a week in May before going silent and not being seen or heard again. We will be carrying out habitat management work for this species over the winter to hopefully attract them back for next year.

Turtle Dove were once again present with two males calling on site and a third just south of the reserve. A family group was then seen in late August - fantastic news for one of the UK's most at-risk species.

Black-headed Gull and Common Tern had a hard time last year being severely affected by Avian Influenza. This, together with issues of flooding, resulted in numbers of breeding pairs plummeting from their 2022 levels. This year saw an increase of both species, although it will take some time to get back to pre-Avian Influenza levels.

As the autumn and winter progress over the next few months, we will be busy carrying out habitat management work around the reserve to get it into the best possible condition for the 2025 breeding season.
